Re: Brick and Block Finisher Classification

Dear Mr. Becker:

You have asked for a new sub-classification and rate for Brick and Block Finishers. We have met about this issue. We have spoken on the phone and you have provided me with documents including a memorandum of understanding (MOU) between Local 1 and the Washington State Conference of Mason Contractors or Local 1 and the Independent Mason Contractors. The MOU relates to the work and rates for brick and block finisher.

As is our normal procedure, in addition to considering the material you sent including the MOU, your scope of work, and the Laborer's scope of work, I spoke with the Laborers as an interested party. The revised MOU corrects the open ended duty assignment and is presently not signed.

After careful consideration of the issue including the revised MOU you provided, I am still unable to find sufficient distinction between the requested brick and block finisher you are requesting and the hod carriers, mason tenders and mortarmen classification to warrant a new classification.

If you and the laborers provide me additional information that sufficiently delineates the work of a laborer-hod carrier and brick and block finisher, I will be willing to reevaluate my determination and consider a new classification. However, without additional compelling documentation distinguishing the brick and block finisher from the hod carriers, mason tenders and mortarmen I am unable to add a classification that is already covered by another scope.

Mr. Dennis Becker

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING

The Washington State Conference of Mason Contractors / Independent Mason Contractors and Bricklayers & Allied Craftworkers Local 1 of Washington agree as follows:

Effective January 1, 2008, all contractors bound to the collective bargaining agreement between the Washington State Conference of Mason Contractors and BAC Local #1 Washington or the agreement between the Independent Mason Contractors and BAC Local #1 Washington agree to the following addition of Brick and Block Finisher language.

1. Brick and Block Finishers may be employed to assist the journeyman or apprentice with such duties as sawing, cleaning, washing, grouting or any other BAC work assigned by the BAC foreman to increase the productivity of the journeyman or apprentice. Under no circumstances shall their duties consist of laying, setting or striking of any materials.

The intent of this section is not to replace any journeyman or apprentice but rather to increase to productivity for the benefit of the masonry industry. Brick and Block Finisher wage rates shall be shown on Schedule B for Wages and Benefits.

This Memorandum of Understanding shall be considered as part of the Agreement now in place between the parties.

DATED this _____ day of _____ 2007.
