Mask and Distancing Requirements Are Changing:
Key COVID-19 Updates for Fully Vaccinated Workers (May 21, 2021)

What’s new:
- Fully vaccinated employees do not have to wear a mask or socially distance at work, unless their employer or local public health agency still requires it.
- Before ending mask and social distance requirements, employers must confirm workers are fully vaccinated — by having the worker either sign a document attesting to their status or provide proof of vaccination.
- Employers must be able to demonstrate they have verified vaccination status for workers who are not masked or physically distanced. Verifications methods may include:
  - Creating a log of workers who have verified they’ve been vaccinated and the date of verification,
  - Checking vaccination status each day as workers enter a jobsite,
  - Marking a worker’s badge or credential to show that they are vaccinated, or
  - Other methods demonstrating an employer has verified worker vaccination status may also meet the standard.
- When verifying an employee’s vaccine status, acceptable documentation includes a CDC vaccination card, a photo of the card, documentation from a health care provider, a signed attestation from the worker, or documentation from the state immunization information system.
- Evidence of the verification system must be available to L&I upon request.

What’s staying in place:
- Employers may still require mask use if they choose, and with some exceptions (http://lawfilesext.leg.wa.gov/biennium/2021-22/pdf/Bills/Session%20Laws/Senate/5254-S.SL.pdf), employers must allow employees to wear a mask or other protective equipment if they choose to, regardless of vaccination status.
- If an employee is not fully vaccinated or their vaccination status is unknown, employers must continue to require masks and social distancing.
- The new guidance does not change masking rules for health care settings like hospitals, long-term care, or doctor’s offices; correctional facilities, homeless shelters, schools, child care centers or day camps. And the federal order requiring masks on public transportation remains in place.
- Employers cannot fire or discriminate against an employee who is at high risk of contracting COVID-19 and is seeking accommodation that protects them from COVID-19 exposure.
- Unvaccinated individuals are still required to wear face coverings in all public spaces.

Employers are encouraged to check with their local public health agency, which may have more stringent requirements or recommendations.
